

FRANZ WRIGHT

BILD, 1959

As the bourbon's level descended in the bottle
his voice would grow lower and more
indistinct, like a candle flame
under a glass

Sunlight in the basement room

So he reads to me
disappearing
When he is gone

I go over and secretly taste his drink

Mushroom cloud of sunset